2. The aims for concluding/continuing international cooperation.

Prof. Singh have complementary research expertise in primate life-history and female reproduction, which allows for a truly ground-breaking approach to this research project. Prof. Mewa Singh (Department of Psychology and Institute of Excellence, University of Mysore, India) will be the collaborator in India. He is a life-long distinguished Professor in primatology and specialist in bonnet macaque ecology and behaviour. Prof. Singh has published numerous papers on this species.

Through collaboration with Prof. Singh, the world-known primatologist, the project will contribute to the movement of knowledge across Europe and India, by creating new links between Dr. Arlet and collaborators (including those at the University of California Davis, University of Mysore, Adam Mickiewicz University, University of Rennes 1, and McGill University) that will lead to future joint research projects and collaborations, thus contributing to long-term synergies. The experience gained throughout the proposed research project will significantly contribute to and add different competencies to Dr. Arlet's profile, including new knowledge and enhancement of her research skills.

- 3 Task division between the project partners (schedule), the nature of support and involvement of partner institutions as well as the information on the infrastructure to be made available.

Prof Singh will take an active role in encouraging communication and feedback, and disseminating results. The implementation of the project will be done by jointly setting clear research objectives, monitoring their progress, providing practical guidance, developing research ideas. During the observation period, Dr Arlet and Prof. Singh will talk regularly on Skype in informal meetings that will give them the opportunity to discuss the progress of the research, identify key steps for development, and discuss any issues and practical arrangements necessary to successfully deliver the work. Moreover, Prof. Singh will visit the field site and give talks at the Anthropology Institute at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań.

Poznań, April 25, 2019

Dear Professor Mehta Sir,

This concerns the joint project proposal "Copy attachment and genetic imprinting with respect to effects of mother's social network on child personality development" for the first year of the joint research project in South India.

I am glad to inform you that the project has been selected by the fund "MIS-2017-02-00037". I plan to start the project on October 1, 2019. I will be attached for a period of three years. I plan to stay one year in October 2019 to begin the project, and also a few times during the project works, I will be visiting India.

In this regard, kindly get an agreement from the University of Mysore stating that this is a joint research project between the Adam Mickiewicz University, Poland and the University of Mysore, as well as an approval from the Ministry of Higher Education Development Government of India.

Best regards,

Matzczak Alicja,
